

Activity State Diagram

The flow of the program will begin with the user on a main homepage where they can choose to start the program. After starting the programming, they will be asked a series of mandatory questions that allow them to enter their preferences. The entered preferences will be combined and compared to the travel location data stored in the databases. The best match will be displayed as the location recommendation on the web program for the user to view.